

Courtney Young-Law's (Nominating Committee) personal and professional work centers on helping people feel loved, recognize their agency, and claim their power to create the lives and communities they seek. In 2001, she discovered a similar spiritual community at UUSF, married her partner Chris Law in the sanctuary in 2005, and has been actively involved in church life for the past decade, all while raising her two children in the religious education program. At UUSF, she has served as the chair of the Family Ministry Committee and on the Spiritual Tending Working Group of the Mission/Vision Task Force, served on the hiring search committee for the Minister of Congregational Life, has been a Sunday School volunteer teacher, and has facilitated strategy retreats for the board. Her professional work as a leadership coach and facilitator has allowed her to create and deliver leadership programs that train, support, and connect leaders to foster a thriving democracy and tackle society's biggest challenges together. She was most recently the Chief Programs Officer for Coro Northern California, a leadership development nonprofit. A native Texan, she has called San Francisco home for more than 20 years.